

This is Bob and he has a nuclear family which consist of mother, father and siblings. Siblings are brothers and sisters also known as your parents' offspring.

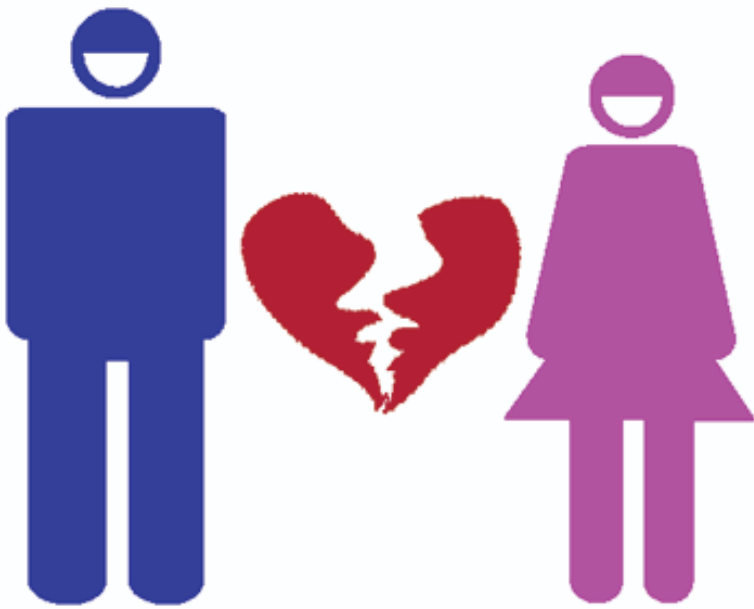

Bob is 10 years old at this moment and this is his family tree but will become a little complicated later in his life.

Bob also has an extended family, his grandparents, uncle, aunt and cousins. If his cousins were to have children then they will be his second cousins.

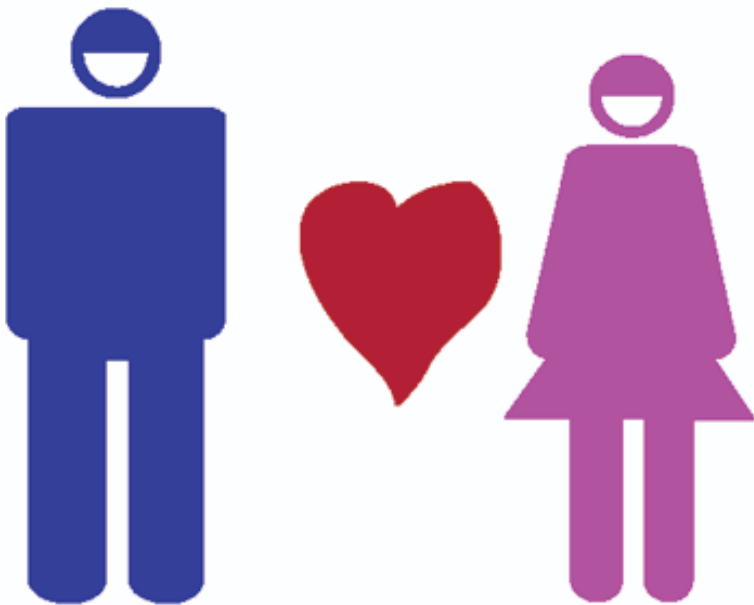

Bob's grandparents' parents are still alive and he calls them his great grandparents.

One sad day Bob's parents no longer loved each other and separated. They filed for divorce and his mother won custody over the children.

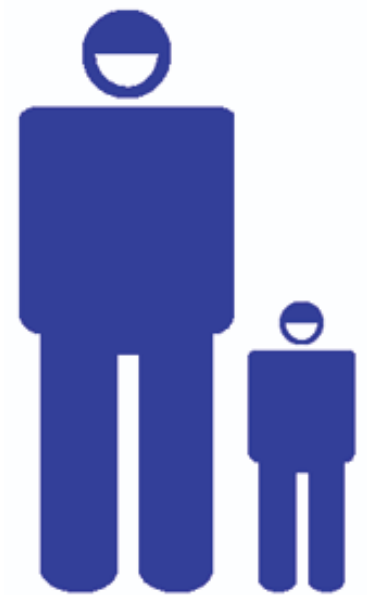

Because Bob's father was no longer living with them his mother is now a single parent.

His father had to pay maintenance to Bob's family. Because his father was no longer with the mother he is now her ex-husband.

Bob's mother remarried another man and now is his step father. This man is now her new spouse.

Who already has a son and is now Bob's step brother.

Bob's mother and new step father decided to have a baby daughter. Because Bob and the baby have the same mother but not the same father she is his half sister.

A tragic day had fallen upon Bob and his family as his mother and step father were involved in a car accident. Leaving him and his siblings orphans. Because not all of his brothers and sisters were fully related they were split up. They had to go to different legal guardians until they became older.

Because Bob and his full brother and sister were baptised/christened when they were babies they had God parents. God parents made a vow to take over as parents when the real parents die.

But for Bob's step brother he had to go to a foster home which is when the government appoints a person to temporarily look after them. As he doesn't have actual parents he is a ward of the state.

His baby half sister was adopted and now has two new parents who have the same legal custody as her real parents.

Bob is now all grown up and is legally independent he is no longer a minor. He is not married and single which makes him a bachelor.

Until one day he met a beautiful spinster. They decided to live together before getting married and became a de facto couple.

Bob decided to pop the question and his girlfriend is now his fiancée. Now that they're engaged he has to meet the future in-laws which he is very nervous about.

His fiancée's nuclear family is similar to his first family. Once they are married they will be his in-laws. His brother in-law has a son and daughter which his fiancée calls nephew and niece. Even though he calls him his brother in-law he doesn't need to call the children nephew and niece in-laws just nephew and niece.

Today's the big day and Bob had invited his full brother and sister as well as his step brother along with his half sister. His God parents had come along with his half sister's adoptive parents. Even his father came to the wedding but he wished his mother and step father could be alive to join them.

The End.
